

A Face to Meet the Faces

It's Mask Day and those in Finance have the most malevolent. In the hallways you nearly have a heart attack when some accountant leaps from his cubicle.

Lucille "I know where the bodies are buried" of Purchasing puts on a glamour number which is breathtaking.

Hairy Al of Receiving dons an almost identical one.
(No questions, please, on those two.)

Our CEO meticulously adjusts one crafted from his own face.

The new hires are, of course, hot on actors or athletes. They feel such are clever--everybody has to learn.

Well, those humorless "intellectuals" pretending to be among us spout their endless theories, but the rest of us have looked forward to Mask Day.

We're certainly not about to let the likes of them wet-blanket it!
